Firstly I'd like to introduce myself and apologise for posting in English on a German site. I'm resident in Germany and therefore would like to get inputs from people here and not in the US.

I'd appreciate your inputs to my situation. I have been reading a lot here but may have missed answers to questions I may ask -sorry in advance for that. Please post in German if you like I will understand, just don't write it too good, but I will try in coming posts

To the issue

I've been losing my hair slowly since 1997. Not enough for anyone else to notice except me, I worked out lots of ways of covering it up. It only started falling out a lot from 2006.

-The first picture is from Jan 2005.

The second picture is yesterday, taken in daylight, unwashed, scraped back and with no gel or thickener. So you can see the situation as it really is.

The third is from yesterday after "prettifying it all up" So many may ask "What's your problem Dude" you're doing better than most....
