When humans were evolving we were covered in hair (head to toe) because we were cavemen and it was nature's way of keeping us warm. Over years the planet has gotten hotter which is why we look the way we do now. One day in the very distant future humans won't have any hair at all so all those who are going bald should not be ashamed, it just means they are ahead of evolution which is kinda a cool thing. Baldness is the future.
