Kann jemand ein Produkt empfehlen, wo auch wirklich drin ist, was wirkt? Es gibt ja schon viele Angebote, die Frage ist nur, was davon seriös ist!

Vielen Dank

ich halte nichts von dem zeug, hab auch irgendwo mal einen bericht gelesen wieso es nicht so wirken soll wie es beworben wird.

Nunja, ich denke schon dass es eine Wirkung hat. Bei Tieren wird es ja schon sehr lange eingesetzt und kann damit schon einiges kontrollieren. Natürlich wirkt es beim Menschen nicht so deutlich, aber dennoch können wir uns nicht von einem Trieb freisprechen, der dadurch vielleicht angesprochen wird .

Ich werde mal PubMed dazu befragen. Vielleicht gibt es dazu wissenschaftliche Studien.

Pheromonal influences on sociosexual behavior in postmenopausal women.

To determine whether a putative human sex-attractant pheromone increases specific sociosexual behaviors of postmenopausal women, we tested a chemically synthesized formula derived from research with underarm secretions from heterosexually active, fertile women that was recently tested on young women. Participants (n = 44, mean age = 57 years) were postmenopausal women who volunteered for a double-blind placebo-controlled study designed, to test an odorless pheromone, added to your preferred fragrance, to learn if it might increase the romance in your life. During the experimental 6-week period, a significantly greater proportion of participants using the pheromone formula (40.9%) than placebo (13.6%) recorded an increase over their own weekly average baseline frequency of petting, kissing, and affection (p = .02). More pheromone (68.2%) than placebo (40.9%) users experienced an increase in at least one of the four intimate sociosexual behaviors (p = .04). Sexual motivation frequency, as expressed in masturbation, was not increased in pheromone users. These results suggest that the pheromone formulation worn with perfume for a period of 6 weeks has sex-attractant effects for postmenopausal women.

Und noch eins. Allerdings ist im Abstract kein Result enthalten. Werde mir morgen dazu den Volltext anschauen.

Human pheromones and sexual attraction.

Olfactory communication is very common amongst animals, and since the discovery of an accessory olfactory system in humans, possible human olfactory communication has gained considerable scientific interest. The importance of the human sense of smell has by far been underestimated in the past. Humans and other primates have been regarded as primarily 'optical animals' with highly developed powers of vision but a relatively undeveloped sense of smell. In recent years this assumption has undergone major revision. Several studies indicate that humans indeed seem to use olfactory communication and are even able to produce and perceive certain pheromones; recent studies have found that pheromones may play an important role in the behavioural and reproduction biology of humans. In this article we review the present evidence of the effect of human pheromones and discuss the role of olfactory cues in human sexual behaviour.

Minox wirkt nach Studien auch nur an der Tonsur und jeder schmiert sichs noch woanders hin und aus gutem Grund.
Und ausserdem schmiert man sich das nicht unter die Achseln...

Alles Mumbo Jumbo?

Beispiel Studie 1:

Zitat:

J.J. Cowley and B.W.L. Brooksbank, Human exposure to putative pheromones and changes in aspects of social behaviour, J Steroid Biochem Mol Biol 39 (1991)

Cowley and Brooksbank asked males and females to wear a necklace either containing an opposite-sex pheromone or a control substance while they slept. The next day, they found that women who had worn the male pheromones in their necklace reported significantly more interactions with males than the control group.

Beispiel Studie 2:

Zitat:

W.B. Cutler, E. Friedmann and N.L. McCoy, Pheromonal influences on sociosexual behaviour in men, Arch Sex Behav 27 (1998)

38 male volunteers recorded the occurrence of six sociosexual behaviours (petting/affection/kissing; formal dates; informal dates; sleeping next to a partner; sexual intercourse; and masturbation) over a 2-week 'baseline' period. Over the next 6 weeks the volunteers kept the same records while daily applying a male pheromone or a control substance added to their usual aftershave lotion. The authors reported that a significantly higher proportion of pheromone users compared to placebo users showed an increase from baseline in 'sexual intercourse' and 'sleeping next to a romantic partner'. In general 58% of the pheromone group compared to 19% of the placebo group showed increases in two or more behaviours compared to baseline; 41% of the pheromone group compared to 9.5% of the placebo group showed increases in three or more behaviours compared to baseline.

Beispiel Studie 3:

Zitat:

N.L. McCoy and L. Pitino, Pheromonal influences on sociosexual behaviour in young women, Physiol Behav 75 (2002)

36 female volunteers recorded the occurrence of the same six socio-sexual behaviours and an additional behaviour 'male approaches' over a 2-week 'baseline' period. Over the next 6 weeks they then either applied a synthetic female pheromone or a control substance added to their usual perfume on a daily basis. While the groups did not differ in their sociosexual behaviours at baseline, a significantly higher proportion of the pheromone group showed increases in the following behaviours: 'sexual intercourse', 'sleeping next to a partner', 'formal dates' and 'petting/affection/kissing'. However, as pheromone exposure can shift the timing of ovulation, the authors recalculated the data to only include the first experimental cycle. After these recalculations the pheromone group only significantly differed from the placebo group in 'sexual intercourse' and 'formal dating'. In terms of percentages, three or more sociosexual behaviours increased over baseline in 74% of pheromone users but only 23% of placebo users. As there was no increase in self-reported masturbation the authors argued that the changes did not reflect changes in sexual motivation, but that the pheromones had "positive sexual attractant effects..."

ich glaube, dass es jetzt beim flirten oder so einem nicht hilft.....weil die geruchsstoffe garnicht da ankommen, wo sie sollen!

Wenn du jemandem aber ganz nah bist und diese an dir rum schnuppert.....glaub ich schon, dass es was bringt.
Aber wenn du sie (ihn) schon so weit hast.....
